

Case Study: Enfonic

Challenges:

At Enfonic, we're an acoustic consultancy focused on making the world a quieter place. We optimise design, assess impacts, ensure compliance and deliver insights on a diverse range of projects.

We have supported the planning applications of some of the largest renewable energy, transportation infrastructure and residential developments in Ireland.

While we've always had strong technical knowledge in noise and vibration, incorporating sustainability into our daily work was a task. There was a clear knowledge gap, and we weren't sure how to bridge it.

Being a small organisation, we found that we did not have the data or resources available to begin our sustainability journey.

This is where the supply chain sustainability school played a pivotal role! It gave us a clear path forward, with tailored action plans that helped us take small, practical steps toward making our organisation more sustainable.

Impact:

As a dedicated noise and vibration consultancy, we are finding a way within the broader field of sustainability.

Enfonic joined the Supply Chain

Sustainability School in 2024; ever since then, 3 new team members have joined the school. So far, we have completed a total of 57 hours 51 minutes, including 31 hrs 24 mins of CDP time, and have accessed a total of 44 resources.

With the school's guidance, we have begun to explore new and important concepts which has deepened our understanding of areas that are outside our technical expertise.

Through its workshops, webinars, and learning modules, we have been able to develop our own sustainability and FIR policies!

In addition to this, we have taken steps to measure our environmental impact by calculating our carbon footprint! While we are new to this journey, the school has played a critical role in boosting is take our first steps in our sustainability journey.

Value gained:

Our participation in the Supply Chain Sustainability School has been instrumental in enhancing our sustainability knowledge.

The school has encouraged us to start recording our carbon emissions. Without enrolling in the school, we would not have had this baseline to set KPIs and to track our continuous improvement going forward.

Our team members have been able to access the modules and learn at their own pace. In addition to that, the workshops - which are interactive, particularly the breakout rooms where people could chat and collaborate with one another, along with the webinars, have been truly helpful in broadening our understanding of fundamental topics in sustainability.

The materials that are provided by the school are helping us step outside our traditional area of expertise and play an active part in broader sustainability discussions!

In return, we have started taking the first steps towards developing frameworks within our business to make it more sustainable. Not only this, but we have also fostered an environment where our team members are more aware of making responsible decisions.
